South Side was ablaze with light from top to bottom last night, while within its walls were presented scenes of delight. The occasion was the society's annual children's masquerade carnival. As is always the case whenever the Arion attempts anything, last night's festivities were a complete and memorable success in every detail. The directing genius whose clever management and artistic taste produced the many pretty effects and handsome groupings that so pleased the eyes of the large number present, was signin Miss Annie Hess, whose success in conducting the children's carnival last year was so marked as to have been memorable ever since. This year Miss Hess more than surpassed herself, and was eminently deserving of the warm thanks of the society as publicly expressed by President Stifel last night, and which were accompanied by a basket of exquisite flowers.

They were both richly attired in silks and velvets, and the Princess literally carried people's hearts by storm. She is as pretty as a picture, and carried herself with as much dignity as any ideal princess. They rode in a gaily decorated wagon drawn by Master Willie Bonenberger's pet goat. Charlie and Harry Killmyer, and Hilda Lobenstein and Mary Schmeichel made a handsome Folly group, and then there were Russian skaters, Buflalo Bill, cowboys and Indians, sailors and their pretty mates, fairies and innumerable other characters. The celebrated patent process Alaroma Coffee, packed by the Union Coffee Company, New York, has within a very short time, won its way into public favor, strictly on its intrinsic merits, and it is now the most popular brand on the market. For extra strength and for richness of flavor it stands unequalled, and consumers who give it a single trial will use no other thereafter. Quality always the same. Should there be any who have not yet tried this deservedly favorite brand of coffee, ask your retailer for a package and be convinced. For sale by all leading grocers in Wheeling and territory tributary thereto. Ask your grocer for Alaroma Coffee.
